

Endangered Symbol?

What would America be without the bald eagle?

AMERICA'S NATIONAL SYMBOL was once almost lost forever. But today, the eagle once again soars over our nation...thanks in large part to the Endangered Species Act.

Today we can see bald eagles in the wild—California condors, grizzly bears, and humpback whales, too. More importantly, these magnificent creatures will be around for our children and grandchildren to enjoy. All because of the Endangered Species Act.

Of the more than 1,800 plants and animals protected by the Act, only 9 have been declared extinct—an astonishing success rate.

We are Americans. We protect what's ours.

That's why we passed the Endangered Species Act over 30 years ago.

That's why we need it today.

For information on how to protect our natural heritage, go to www.SaveESA.org

Paid for by Defenders of Wildlife